Annual Master Gardener Recertification Begins October 19

It's that time of year already! The annual Master Gardener Recertification window will open October 19. All applications for recertification will be due by November 30, 2022. Late applications cannot be accepted.

Active Master Gardeners are encouraged to review their hours now and ensure they have a plan for completing their volunteer requirements before the recertification deadline. Volunteer hours must be kept current in GivePulse at least monthly. A reminder of 2022 volunteer requirements, along with instructions for checking recorded 2022 hours, may be found in the September 8 email message from the Program Leadership Team.

Current Master Gardeners in intern, veteran, emeritus and leave of absence status will receive an email with more information about recertification in early October. The application link will be sent in a separate email on October 19.

A Note from the Program Coordinator

I would like to begin by saying thank you to all the Program and Foundation leaders and the Master Gardeners who have made me feel so welcome. Thank you for sharing information about the important work you are doing. I'm working with Program leadership to find opportunities and activities where I can meet more of you and see the work you are doing. In the meantime, you are invited to come meet me and share your insights into the Program.

I will be holding in-person office hours in the Master Gardeners' office at the Center for Urban Horticulture, 3501 NE 41st St, Seattle WA 98105, on Thursdays from 11:00 a.m. – 12:00 p.m. and 4:00 p.m. – 5:00 p.m. I will also be available to meet on Zoom on Tuesdays from 12:00 p.m. – 1:00 p.m. and 6:00 p.m. – 7:00 p.m. The Zoom meeting link is here: <https://wsu.zoom.us/j/96435472662?pwd=ZkxMNDC5Z2VtVGJHN3RtbWZxbVpzZz09>. I will have my Zoom meeting open; feel free to say, “hi” so I know you are there.

In the future, I will use this space to share Program news and updates. As I get to know more of you, I hope to learn what is important to you and use this space for topics you most want to hear about.

Warmly,
Sarah Moore
King County Master Gardener Program Coordinator

Magnuson Children's Garden Dedication and Anniversary Event

Over 50 children and adults gathered on June 30th for a day of celebration at Magnuson Children's Garden. The garden looked its best on the sunny afternoon with dozens of shrubs and perennials blooming in the beds and all of the garden furnishings “shined up” for the big occasion.

Artist and teacher Sandy Brichel Miller emceed the event and received kudos for her leadership of the “All Are Welcome” double-sided mural project. Over 100 local youth participated in the ceramic mural and/or the painted mural. Several of the children shared favorite moments of their participation in the design and creation process. Children's Garden (CG) volunteers Carol Furry, Martha Taylor, and Master Gardener Emily Bishton received special recognition for their work on the mural project.

Cool Plants, Hot Topics: Event Recap and Acknowledgments

...by Bruce Caredio, Master Gardener and Foundation Board Member

While big events never go perfectly, from my point of view, the Cool Plants, Hot Topics! event ran quite smoothly. The team of Master Gardeners, Suzi O'Byrne, Bruce Williams and myself under the gentle guidance of event coordinator and Master Gardener, Linda Peterson, planned and facilitated a successful plant sale and continuing education event.

Calling All Veggie Gardeners!

The Growing Groceries Leadership Team is looking for new members who are interested in developing the next Growing Groceries lecture series. Team members may be presenters, but the main tasks involve planning and administering the program. There's no need to drive to meetings as Growing Groceries is a very successful Zoom-based program.

Please consider joining this amazing team. If you are interested, please contact Joan Baldwin at growinggroceries.king@gmail.com for details.

Wisdom from the Past

The excerpt that follows appeared in an article in the "President's Corner" in the April 2001 Program/Foundation joint newsletter. Master Gardener Laura Roudabush, then President of the Foundation Board, wrote this shortly after the Nisqually earthquake, which hit the Puget Sound area in February 2001. Laura's comments are as relevant today as then, and prescient as well. Thanks to Master Gardener Penny Kriese for bringing this to light.

"Be it energy prices, water supply or job layoffs, we are all under tremendous budgetary pressures that directly impact our decision making. We need to put food on the table, heat our homes and keep a roof over our heads. It is important to know the impacts of our choices both on our budget and on the environment. Knowing your options, leads to environmentally friendly choices. It is times like these that we need the research based factual education provided by WSU Cooperative Extension via Master Gardeners to be widespread. Learning how to protect, cherish and nurture this fragile earth is the true path to saving not only it but also ourselves.

Our training and expertise are needed more now than ever. There are so many needs and only so many Master Gardeners to go around. I would urge those of you with special skills to use them to their fullest. Apply yourself to the area in which you excel. I want you to be greedy about acquiring new knowledge, take advantage of the educational opportunities that WSU offers so that you can then pass it on to others. When we are passionate about our calling, the entire community gets fired up and the effect is contagious...As Master Gardeners [we] can immediately have an impact on the quality of daily life and need not wait for an earthquake to see the bounties of our teachings. By joyously sharing our knowledge, we enable others as well as ourselves to live life to its fullest.”

Iwígara

Iwígara was published in September 2020 by Timber Press. Brian Thompson, Curator of Horticultural Literature, reviewed the book.
